If the student participation rate for any of the selected classes is less than 90%, then a makeup session is required. Even if holding a makeup session at the school will not increase the student participation rate to 90%, the makeup session should nevertheless be held to increase the rate as much as possible. If the low student participation rate is due solely to students being absent because of parent/guardian refusal or students not being enrolled at the school anymore, then a makeup session would not be possible and is not required.

If several classes participated in PIRLS in the school, only one makeup session would need to be held for absent students of all participating classes. Only students who are listed on the Student Tracking Form may participate in the test. No substitution of students is permitted.
